

Designated Truckload for Specified Contracts

The Casualty & Professional Brokerage Division offers Excess Auto Designated Truckload Coverage.

Benefits

- > Purchasing this customized coverage provides immediate cost savings to a trucking insured. This is accomplished by adding coverage only for the increase in limits required in a contract between a trucker and its customer—and limited to the operations described in the contract
- > Due to the precisely limited coverage afforded, the premium for this specialized coverage is significantly lower than traditional alternatives
- > Our product delivers a significant competitive advantage to truckers seeking contracts with a variety of customers. This is due to our ability to charge only for those exposures and limits associated with each contract. An insured no longer faces the prospect of increasing the limits for its entire fleet (and paying a significantly higher additional premium) to compete for attractive opportunities

Coverages Offered

Excess Auto Liability with Excess Truckers' GL

- > Coverage is provided where higher limits are required by contractual obligation and where specified vehicles are incapable of being dedicated to such a specific trucking contract

Conditions

- > Combined Primary and Excess limits will equal the limits required by the contract
- > Coverage is limited to truckloads transported under a specified contract (a "designated truckload")
- > Bobtailing and Deadheading exposures are ineligible for this coverage
- > In the event of an accident, the Bill of Lading must be produced as a condition for coverage
