General Star Expands Architects & Engineers Program

Admitted program approved in Maryland & Virginia

STAMFORD, CT – January 14, 2016 - General Star announces the addition of Maryland and Virginia to the states eligible for its admitted Architects and Engineers Professional Liability coverage. Entering the eighth year of the A&E program, Maryland and Virginia join NY, NJ, PA, NC, SC and GA as authorized territories. Professional Coverage Managers (“PCM”), New York, NY remains the exclusive program administrator.

Coverage is written on a primary basis and targeted for small to mid-size firms with receipts up to $10,000,000. Limits up to $5,000,000 are available, and worldwide coverage is automatically included. The product provides competitive coverage terms for traditional A&E exposures, as well as a number of automatic enhancements such as privacy and information security.

“Adding Maryland and Virginia further strengthens the Program’s presence from New York to Georgia,” said Scott Ginsberg, A&E Product Leader for General Star. “Our expansion into GA, NC and SC in 2015 was well received in the A&E marketplace. We are pleased to add MD and VA and build on that momentum.”

Marty Hacala, President and CEO of General Star notes, “The A&E Program has added five new admitted territories in the last seven months, demonstrating the expanding commitment of PCM and General Star to the architects and engineers marketplace. We are delighted with the results, and look forward to acting on new opportunities with PCM to deliver dependable protection to A&E professionals.”
