General Star Expands Admitted Architects & Engineer Protection Filings approved in NC, SC and GA

STAMFORD, CT – June 17, 2015 - General Star announces the availability of its Architects and Engineers Professional Liability program on an admitted basis in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. These three states join New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania as territories in which admitted paper is obtainable. General Star offers coverage in the remaining states on a non-admitted basis. Professional Coverage Managers, New York, NY remains the exclusive program administrator.

The offering is written on a primary basis and targeted for small to mid-size firms with receipts up to $10,000,000. Limits up to $5,000,000 are available, and worldwide coverage is automatically included. The product provides competitive coverage for traditional A&E exposures, as well as a number of automatic enhancements such as privacy and information security.

“With the addition of NC, SC and GA to our admitted territories, we have strengthened our presence in the Southeast,” said Scott Ginsberg, A&E Product Leader for General Star. “We anticipate additional expansions in our admitted capability for selected states.”

Marty Hacala, President and CEO of General Star added, “We are pleased to expand our admitted footprint into the three new territories. Combining the financial security of a Berkshire Hathaway insurer with an admitted policy delivers a valuable offering to the architect and engineer marketplace.”
